Captology student in the news . . . eye browsing the web

A few weeks back, my former TA and student Manu Kumar updated me on his doctoral work. At one point he sat me down and had me navigate the web just by looking at the screen. I didn't have to wear anything or do anything special. I just looked around the screen and things happened.

I'm glad to see he's getting some visibility in this post and a related article.
